The Life Course and the Family in the United States and Japan

The two articles in this section are the outcome of a four-year binational comparative study of the life course and the family in Japan and the United States. The project was funded by the Japan Society for the Promotion of Science, the Social Science Research Council, and the United States–Japan Friendship Commission. The leader of the Japanese team was Professor Kiyomi Moriyoka and the coordinators of the American team were Tamara Hareven, Reuben Hill, and David Plath.
